Imp Disappoints a Strong Following and Runs a Poor Second to Sparrow Wing -The Hurdle Stake Goes to a Neglected Outsider-Only One Successful Favorite. Threatening weather in the early part of yesterday kept the attendance down to low-water mark at Morris Park, but racegoers who made the trip to the Westchester course found a card descrying of more liberal patronage. The lars, who take little stock in the barometer, were on hand early with voluminous "dope" books, but the cuppy going upset their calculations and only one successful favorite materialized. It was a welcome day of recuperation for the books and one of mourning The sport opened with a handicap for threerear-olds and upward, down the Eclipse course which was apparently improved by the rain that had made the circular track slow. All the six candidates accepted the allotted weights, and the pick of the bunch was said to be Elfin Conig. He ruled favorite at 8 to 5, the only rival seriously played being Native, Lady Uncas was overlooked at 6 to 1, but when it came to racing she tiptoed her field and won easily in the fastest time hung out during the meeting. Robert Metcaif was the principal contender all the way and he hung on long enough to beat Native and Eifin Conig, the trio finishing heads apart. Old Zanone could hardly raise a gallop, y secured sixth place because there and only secured sixth place because there were not any more in the race.

A dozen two-year-olds turned out for the four-and-a-half-furlong selling dash, and a pronounced plunge on Audacious made her farorite at 7 to 2. Those who liked Ashes did not care for the jockey, and passed her over to their cost. She rushed to the front soon after faafail and won easily by a length and a half. Screech took the place comfortably by three lengths from Connie, who rushed up in time to beat Flatterer a neck. event.

The fourth race was marred rather than otherwise by the presence of the last Suburban heroine, Imp. She was instrumental in scaring five candidates out of the event and then ran a race which would scarcely pass muster in the Maspeth electric light era. Imp was the logical favorite, and although handicapped with 129 pounds and a lockey named Vest in the saddle, she was sent to the post at 3 to 5. Some wise persons took chances on Lady Lindsey and Star Chime to beat her while the consistent plater, Sparrow Wing, went begging at 9 to 1. Maher forced the pace with Lady Lindsey with Imp next for a furlong when the black mare gave way to Star Chime. This order was maintained to the home stretch where Sparrow Wing made her bid and won very easily by five lengths. The other contenders went to the whip and Imp, Star Chime and Lady Lindsey were floggæed over the line at neck intervals. It was said that the going did not suit the topweight and her performance was passed over as in keeping with her erratic record.

Billy Oliver's patched-up breadwinner, Brisk, easily carried a lot of good money to the front in the fifth race after Oliver Mac had made his usual bluff for six furlongs. This success in the face resulted as many of its kind have ended before, Gov. Griggs, the rank outsider, winning easily from the favorite Mazo. Filon d'or lost the place in the run home through a stumble, which almost unseated his jockey. Summary:

HILTON STILL SURVIVES. Defeats R. Maxwell in the Golf Championship at Sandwich.

Special Cable Despatch to THE SUN. SANDWICH, May 9. - In the third round of the amateur golf championship to-day H. H. Hilton of the Royal Liverpool Golf Club defeated Robert Maxwell of the Tantallon Golf Club by 4 up and 3 to play. Maxwell was a favorite for the championship. Lord Winchilsea of the St. George's Golf Club defeated S. Mure Ferguson of St. Andrews. Other winners were: Fry of the Mid-Surrey Golf Club, J. Graham of Hoylake, and J. L. Low of Oxford. A feature of the round was the defeat of Leslie Balfour-Melville by a local player named Booth.

The weather was fair and breezy.

Among the successful players in the fourth round were: James Robb and J. E. Laidley of St. Andrew's; Taylor of the Mid-Surrey Golf Club; Pease of the Alnmouth Golf Club; Finch-Hatton of St. Andrew's: Booth and Hambro of St. George's (Sandwich) Golf Club: Bramston of Oxford; Charles Whigham of Prestwick; Gray of Musselburgh, and Holden of Hoylake. The eight men left after the round had been concluded were: Robb, Pease, Hambro, Bramston, Whigham, Hilton, Graham and Lord Winchilsea.

In the afternoon Robb beat Laidley, and Lord Winchilsea beat Low.

Hilton, after being three times runner-up, in 1891, 1892 and in 1896, when F. G. Tait beat him at Sandwich by 8 up and 7 to play, seems now to have received a great chance to win the title he covets most for the first time. His defeat of R. Maxwell shows that he is on his game. After Hilton the most brilliant of the eight to play this morning, on "public form," are C. Whigham, a brother to H. J. Whigham, the former American amateur champion; J. Graham, who is a very dashing golfer, who was a semi-finalist in 1898 when Hilton put him out by 4 up and 3 to play, and James Robb, runner-up to Dr. A. J. T. Allan in 1897. Pease, Booth, Hambro and Bramston hall from English clubs. The only Scotchmen left in are Robb and Whigham.

A number of the most enthusiastic women members of the Edgewater Golf Club braved the wind and rain yesterday and made the rounds in the first of the women's handicap medal play competition of the season. The Handicap Committee did its work well and the victors and vanquished were equally satisfied.
Owing to the inclement weather only two rounds of seven holes each were played. These competitions will continue through the summer and the winners of each will contest for a silver and the winners of each will contest for a silver cup in the fail. The prize vesterday was a pair of silver cuff buttons. The sixth hole, "The Bog," which necessitates a long drive over Avenue A, was the cause of the failure of several of the players to make better scores. A men's handicap, medal play, at twenty-eight holes, will be held on Saturday. The scores vesterday were: holes, will be h yesterday were:

Special Meeting of the Road Drivers' As-sociation Called to Consider Cup Races.

A special meeting of the Road Drivers' Association is to be held at Durando's road house in Dyckman street, near the Speedway next Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The matter of holding a series of cup races for road horses driven by amateurs will be discussed and definite action may be taken. Several members of the organization are opposed to such races, maintaining that no suitable track is available; that few horses would start, and that formal racing would introduce an element of semi-professionalism not condu-that formal racing would introduce an element of semi-professionalism not conducive to the welfare of the association. Those who favor cup races maintain that formal contests of this character on a measured track with starter and judges would afford a better test of speed and endurance than can be obtained by means of informal brushes on the Speedway. They point to the matiness of the Cleveland, Pittsburg and Boston driving clubs as proof that such races can be successfully held and they favor the Parkway half-mile track in Brooklyn as the place for holding the races in case the Empire City course cannot be secured. The long-talked-of project of building a new half-mile track and clubhouse for the use of the association is likewise to be considered at Saturday's meeting.

Alix, 2034, the queen of trotters, will not produce a foal this year. Her owner, F. C. Sayles of Providence, sent her to the court of Directum, 2054, last season and she is to be mated with the champion trotting stallion again this year. Nancy Hanks, 204, the former record-holder, has produced three foals and should have another by Arion, 2074, this spring. Her first foal, the bay filly Narion, by Arion, is now four years old. She has never started in a race. Admiral Dewey, the two-year-old bay coit by Bingen, 2064, is in training and is said to be one of the most promising young trotters at J. Malcoim Forbes's farm. Nancy's foal of 1899, the bay filly by the thoroughbred racehorse, imp. Meddler, is called Princess Monaco-a name suggestive of the element of uncertainty represented in her mixed running and trotting inheritance.

Artemas, the oldest remaining son of Rysdyk's Hambletonian, died recently near Columbus, Ind. He was 30 years of age, having been foaled to 1870. William M. Rysdyk, the owner of Hambletonian, bred the stallion, and sold him to the Massachusetts horseman A. C. Green, the owner of Jay Gould, 2212. Green leased him in 1885 to the Wilsons, owners of Blue Bull, and he had been kept in Indiana many years. Artemas was out of Dolly Mills, by American Star, and was a full brother to Orange Girl, 220, Alax, Sir Walkill and Walkill Chief. He was the sire of twelve trotters in the 230 list, and got several fast pacers, the best of whom was the bay stallion Warren C. that gained a record of 2114 last year. Sir Walkill, the younger brother of Artemas, is still living. He is owned by an lowa horseman.

Taking their one from the Road Drivers' Association of New York, Newark horsemen who own fast trotters and pacers are arranging a parade of road horses for Wednesday of next week. It is expected that many road riders from Paterson, Montclair, Orange and other nearby towns will be on hand with their flyers to reenforce the local forces.

ROWDY BALL IN CHICAGO President Hart Says His Men Can Be Burglars as Long as They Win.

The Chicago baseball enthusiasts had a taste of rowdy ball during the game between the hicago and Pittsburg clubs last Sunday. The hicago Tribune thus describes the affair: "There was a pugilistic side show during the game, brought on by Clarke's propensity for playing unsportsmanlike ball. In the first inning Clarke butted Childs to prevent a double play, and Cupid, growing angry, flew at the transgressor, and for a minute a game of fistiouffs seemed inevitable, but the other players ntervened and the battle was postponed Later intervened and the battle was postponed. Later in the game Clarke turned the same trick again, but Childs did not resent it.

"But Childs had a reason for doing this. The veteran second baseman knew the ball field in the presence of a big crowd was not the piace to settle such trouble. In the evening when the Chicago and Pittsburg teams went to the Lake Shore Station to take the train for Pittsburg Childs approached Clarke and almost at once made an attack on him. The two men had it rough-and-tumble. Clarke was severely beaten about the face and head and Childs's clothing was almost torn from him. was almost torn from him.

"But this was not the most serious part of the trouble. Two of the Pittsburg players stepted in when they saw that Clarke was getting worsted, and this at once led to the Chicago men interfering. For an instant it looked as if the two clubs would soon be engaged in a general fieth, but at this juncture the police appeared and separated Childs and Clarke."

President Hart of the Chicago club was interviewed by a Daily News reporter the next day and he disposed of the subject as follows:

"I don't care what they do as long as they win. They can be burglars if they'll only play winning ball."

Mike Tiernan has bobbed up again as a member of the Derby team of the Connecticut Lengue.

The attendance at some of the League games so far this season has been far below the usual standard.

Though there has been a general demand, the League magnates are still hagging about restoring the double umpire system.

WORCESTER, May 9.—R. J. Chambers, one of the pitchers of the Boston club, has been loaned to Toronto and joined the club here tonight.

Rumor has it that McGraw will receive $10,000 for playing with St. Louis this season. If true, this is double the money Manager Tebeau receives.

The result of the baseball game at Staten Island ast Saturday between teams made up of brokers of the curb market was: Bachelor team, 17, married near Steam, 16.

With Kid Nichols hald up with a sprained wrist, the Bostons are in a predicament and Manager Selec is on a still hunt for more pitchers. He could use Meekin and Killen just now, both of whom were let go by him without a trial this season. Manager Hanlon believes that Joe Kelley will de-clop into a star third baseman and for that reason to Brooklyn captain will not return to the outheid aleas it becomes absolutely necessary. Hanlon

Jimmy Michael's manager said yesterday that beyond the challenge published in THE SUN over Eddie McDuffee's signature he had reesived no communication from the Boston rider. Michael's manager further said that the little Weishman will be ready to meet all comers, but under no circumstances will be be matched for a paced race against a man using such a machine as McDuffee's steam cycle, which gives ts follower an undue advantage over any rival because of its great bulk. There are only two machines like McDuffee's in existence and a man using one of them would have his competitor heavily handicapped.

"Because women do not take their troubles manfully" is the reason ascribed by one dealer manfully" is the reason ascribed by one dealer for the loss of interest in cycling by many of the gentler sex. He used the paradoxical expression in the course of a discussion following an anecdote, which in brief was this:
"A woman who is one of my best customers, keeping her wheel stored here the year around, came in this morning and asked for her cycle. We always look after it and make what repairs are necessary and send her a bill. She had been out the day before and her wheel when she brought it in had a puncture and a couple of broken spokes. When she called for it the wheel was in the repair shop, but almost all the work on it was done. She asked me if it was all right and I lied and said that it was. Then I talked with her a few minutes while a boy went. work on it was done. She asked he if it was all right and I lied and said that it was. Then I talked with her a few minutes while a boy went to the shop and hurried the job through and brought the wheel. If I had told her about the puncture and broken spokes she would have decided not to ride that day and been all upset. "When she returned after a few hours of exercise, I told her plainly that I had lied to her and told her about the repair work. She thanked me for lying and said that if I had told her before she went out it would at least have spoiled her outing. She was cheerful after the spin and laughed and said to send in the bill. Now, why should I have to jolly customers that way? Because I have seen woman after woman give up riding on account of poor luck with punctures and mishaps. They are not sporty and do not take their troubles manfully and that is one of the chief reasons that many have censed to wheel."

The promise of an Irvington-Milburn race as The promise of an Irvington-Milburn race as great as ever seems excellent, for the aspirants have begun to arrive at the course and begin their training over the "sister hills" T. P. Jacobson of New Haven, Floyd Krebs, Pate and Leltov are among those who have early declared themselves and, as they are all well known and fast amateurs, the indications are for a race of quality.

A dealer who does a large general business in reuting repairing and storing, says: "It may seem astonishing, but there are as many or more greenhorns who are helpless in the face of slight difficulties as there were five years ago, and there is more need than ever for the manufacturers to adopt a suggestion made in This SUN and put in the tool bags small books of instructions and practical hints. It is not only in respect to matters that are actually troublescome that riders are ignorant, but in the simplest structions and practical hints. It is not only in respect to matters that are actually troublesome that riders are ignorant, but in the simplest details, such as experienced and clever cyclists would expect a child to understand. There are men as well as women who seem to regard a wrench as a formidable and complicated tool, and who actually will come in and pay to have their handlebars or saddle position shifted. More get balked at the adjustment of the bearings. This is an exasperating job unless it is understood, because of the difficulty of telling how much the bearings have been loosened or tightened until after the outside binding nut has been set up, and then if they are not right the whole operation has to be repeated. "A relating will apply to the great majority of bearings adjustments is this: Loosen the outside nut and set the cone or cup up so that the bearings are tight or locked; then a quarter of a turn in the reverse or loosening direction will leave them with just about the proper amount of turn in the reverse or loosening direction will leave them with just about the proper amount of snugness and freedom.

"The new riders this year are showing falsity "The new riders this year are showing falsity in positions in greater proportion than heretofore, which is readily traceable to the greater number of self-taught riders, who have not learned in the schools that good old formula of adjusting the saddle to such a height that the leg when extended to a pedal in its lowest position permits the heel to rest on it lightly. We have cases of riders who never have filled their oil cans since getting their wheels, and other cases in which they have soused the machine all over with oil, and put it on both sides of the chain, which never should be done. Chains covered with oil accumulate dust; that causes stiff links and oil accumulate dust; that causes stiff links and that clinking sound that appoys. The chain should be treated with graphite, on the sprocket side only, and the top and sides dusted until it gets too dirty, and then the old-fashioned way o on as they have begun in the spring, we waye broken chains by the dozens when the

Those who are pessimistic and declare that the days of acute enthusiasm in cycling are over should be enlivened by a story of two Hoboken youths, who met and entered upon a discussion of track racing. It was asserted by one of the pair that any handicapper who allowed a start of a quarter of a mile in a five-mile race to any rider was both a fool and a villalin, or words about as vigorous. The raference was in regard to a five-mile handicap of last fall, in which Mullanev received a quarter of a mile start, but failed to win. If Sunday Dates at Paris Are Not Changed American Teams May Disband.

The resolution of the Executive Committee f the Intercollegiate A. A. A. A. requesting the Paris Exposition authorities to abandon the Sunday dates selected for the international games has caused quite a flutter in athletic droles. It is feared by many that the trouble may lead to the disruption of many college teams that have been making preparations to send representatives. The sentiment at Princeton, University of Pennsylvania and Syracuse University is said to be strong against competing on Sunday, and if the Parisians insist on holding the games as originally proposed, those universities will decline to send teams. Most of the best athletes of the country are scheduled to represent the three universities named.

The following is a copy of the letter sent to Mr. Spalding by the President of the association, A. G. Mason, and Secretary, W. A. Young: DEAR SIR: Many of the universities and colleges, members of the Intercollegiate Association of Ama-teur Athletes of America, being desirous of sending athletic teams to compete in the international con-tests of physical exercises and sports held by the Republic of France, and it having been brought to the notice of this association that several of the dates, set aside for the events for which their teams are eligible to compete, fail on Sunday, we feel called upon through you, the Exposition's official representative through you, the Exposition's official representative and director of athletics in the United States, to protest and do protest to the Republic of France against such events being held on that day, on which, by reason of the custom of our country and the precedents and rules of our association, we have always refrained from holding or permitting to be held contests of any kind or character.

We respectfully request that the time of holding these events be transferred to another date and day, and further state that those members of this association, contemplating sending their teams to the contests, will not permit their teams to compete on the Sabbath day, and unless the events secheduled for such day are transferred, will not feel justified in accepting the courteous invitation of the officials of the Exposition to be represented in the games.

It is said that the A. A. U. will be accepting the courseous invitation of the officials of the Exposition to be represented in the games.

It is said that the A. A. U. will be asked to indorse the action of the Intercollegiate A. A. A. by passing a similar resolution. This places the A. A. U. nrather an anomalous position, as it is rather the rule than otherwise for union clubs to hold games on Sunday. In the West open games on that day are quite a feature, while the Metropolitan Association went so far this spring as to hold its cross-country championship on Sunday.

Bartow S. Weeks, President of the A. A. U., said yesterday that the matter had not been brought officially to his notice and he could not state what course the union would pursue. Other officials of the organization thought that the most that could be done would be to send a letter to the Exposition authorities, urging the change of dates as the only means of having America properly represented.

So far no intimation has been received of the stand England is likely to take in the matter. Sunday is strictly observed by the athletes in that country. Not only are games a dead letter, but the percentage of athletes who do any training on that day is small. On the other hand, a team of English athletes has visited Paris every season for many years past and accepted the doctrine of "when in Rome do as the Romans do" by meeting the French athletes in games on Sunday.

Cornell Athletes Will Go to Paris. Cornell has decided to send an athletic team to the Paris Exposition. James E Sullivan, Secretary of the A. A. U., yesterday received a letter from Al. red D. Warner, manager of Corneil's track team, asking for information as to the meaning of the word "weights" on the programme of the international games. The real meaning of the word or what the actual weight contests will be cannot be determined until A. G. Spalding reaches Paris and consults with the Exposition authorities.

At Cornell there are several good weight throwers, the best of whom is Boynton, who defeated McCracken, holder of the intercollegiate hammer throwing record at Philadelphia. Boynton's figures were 144 feet for the 18-pound hammer, but since then he has beaten 150 feet several times in practice. In the all-around weight throwing programme his strongest point would be with the discus. In an unfofficial trial a few days ago be sent the regulation discus 148 feet without follow. The world's record is 118 feet 9 inches, by C. H. Henneman of Chicago. neil's track team, asking for information as to of Chicago.

Arrangements for Housing the American

Crews at the Paris Regatta. Fred R. Fortmeyer, Secretary of the N. A. A.O., who is conducting the arrangements for the visit of American crews to the Paris Exposition, has just received a letter from Edmund Fleutiaux, Secretary of the association in charge of the regatta, which insures the American oarsmen being conveniently and comfortably located while abroad. Among other information the letter contains the following: "Mr. Love, a Parisian rowing man, living at Asnieres, is willing to let you his house for a month. The house consists of dining room, terrace, where the meals can be served in the open month. The house consists of dining room, terrace, where the meals can be served in the open air, drawing room, bathroom, shower baths, and the number of rooms permits the installation of fourteen beds. The proprietor will give his relet de chambre for the service. He will undertake to furnish meals and will see to everything, including cook and waitress for the table service.

"The house is situated on the Seine near the anchorage of the Societ Nautique de la Basse Saine, where you could leave your boats. The situation is very good. The regaturs pass before the door, and from the terrace in the garden a view of the whole racecourse can be obtained. You go to Parls quite near the Exposition by railway in ten minutes.

"We hope that you will leave some scullers here for the championship of the Seine and the Parls Cup, which races will take place on Sept. 9 and 16."

The letter concludes with an expression of regret that the committee of the Exposition cannot grant an indemnity for possible injury to the American racing boats, and an explanation that all the appropriation has been set aside for the prizes, which are valuable objects of art.

Coach Courtney Disbands the Cornell Second 'Varsity Crew.

Coach Courtney has furnished a surprise for the undergraduates as well as the oarsmen ond crew would not go to the training table as usual. This action virtually disbands the eight which was expected to row against the second crew of Pennsylvania on Memorial Day. The reason of the action lies in the fact that the segond eight has shown such poor form that Courtney saw the utter uselessness of their continuing training. Even the freshman crew has been able to beat them in practice spins. The disbandment of the second eight creates a remarkable state of affairs at Cornell. Were any of the first Varsity crew to become disabled the place would have to be filled by either the freshmen candidates or members of the inferior third Varsity. The indications now are that Cornell's engagement with Pennsylvania on Memorial Day will have to be filled by a crew made up almost entirely by freshmen. The second crew which was disbanded was practically the combination that won the freshman race at Poughkeepsie last June and for which brilliant work was prophesied this season.

Elis Ward, coach of the Pennsylvania crew, high again put John Gardiner back at stroke and moved Atkin back to No. 2. Gardiner has been stroke of the first Varsity for three years, and the experiment of taking him out of his old seat proved costly to the Quakers. The Athletic Association has completed all arrangements for the race between the second crews of Pennsylvania, Cornell, Columbia and Harvard on May 30.
